In a disturbing turn of events, a chancery official of the diocese of Manchester, New Hampshire has changed a solemnly defined dogma of the Faith into a heresy.

Georges de Laire

Father Georges de Laire, appointed by Bp. Peter Libasci as judicial vicar and vicar for canonical affairs, timed his actions to coincide with his bishop departing for Chicago to do penance for abusive priests. On Jan. 7, he struck.

In an undated text, the official imposed a series of 15 "precepts" upon the members of the Saint Benedict Center (<https://catholicism.org/>), a community of devout lay women and men devoted to spreading the Church's official teaching on the need for all souls to join the Church in order to be saved. Without any evidence, the vicar asserts in his letter that his "precepts" are being imposed "at the direction" of the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The 15 precepts range from a prohibition to identifying themselves as "Catholic" to even "presenting" any doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church.

In November 1302, in what the historian Brian Tierney calls one of "the most famous of all the documents on church and state" titled Unam Sanctam ("One Holy"), Pope Boniface VIII, invoking the plenitude of his apostolic power, defined the ancient doctrine Extra Ecclesiam Nulla Salus — "outside the Church there is no salvation." This teaching was raised by him to the level of a solemnly defined dogma of divine and Catholic faith (De Fide Divina et Catholica Solemniter Definita).

The Second Vatican Council and the current Catechism of the Catholic Church, in article 846, confirm that this most ancient of core teachings of the Church remains valid:

Basing itself on Scripture and Tradition, the Council teaches that the Church, a pilgrim now on earth, is necessary for salvation: the one Christ is the mediator and the way of salvation; he is present to us in his body which is the Church. He himself explicitly asserted the necessity of faith and Baptism, and thereby affirmed at the same time the necessity of the Church which men enter through Baptism as through a door. (Apostolic Constitution Lumen Gentium, 14)

The lay faithful of the Saint Benedict Center deserve commendation for their hard work in spreading one of the most important doctrines of the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. Instead, they find themselves persecuted by the vicar of Bishop Libasci.

NH Vicar Changes Dogma Into Heresy

Apart from officially notifying them in writing and publicly, res inaudita ("a thing unheard of") that "affirmations of faith using the Athanasian Creed ... are invalid," and that the Professions of Faith employing the Athanasian Creed that were signed by the members of their community in 2009 are "null and void," the vicar warned that by remaining steadfast in their adherence to the dogma Extra Ecclesiam Nulla Salus, they have "persisted in their obstinacy," explicitly referencing canon 751 of the Code of Canon Law.

This canon states: "Heresy is the obstinate denial or obstinate doubt after the reception of baptism of some truth which is to be believed by divine and Catholic faith."

In layman's terms, the vicar of Manchester has publicly accused them of being obstinate heretics by publicly spreading their belief in the official teaching of the Church that outside the Church there is no salvation. In the vicar's mind, the truth being denied by the members of the Saint Benedict Center is the heresy that is exactly opposed to the Church's dogma Extra Ecclesiam Nulla Salus: "outside the Church there is salvation." The vicar has changed dogma into heresy.

De Laire is said by current work colleagues to be emotionally unstable in his role as chief canonical judge of the diocese and counselor to his bishop. Church Militant has learned that there is much more than meets the eye to his fresh attack upon a group of devout lay Catholics. De Laire is said to be desperate to repair his image and save his chances at being promoted as bishop or an official of the Roman Curia.

Church Militant has learned that in recent years, at least three complaints against de Laire have been filed with the Holy See and made known to Libasci. Taken together they allege corruption, abuse of office, grave violations of the law, and incompetence as a canonist, even warning Vatican officials that in no case should de Laire be named bishop. And these matters were entirely unrelated to the Saint Benedict Center.

“ Taken together they allege corruption, abuse of office, grave violations of the law, and incompetence as a canonist.

With incompetence in canonical matters also apparently well-known and corroborated in the Roman Curia, de Laire is nicknamed in those halls un incasinaro, "a troublemaker," owing to his notorious botching of canonical cases involving clergy and other matters. Multiple independent sources in the Roman Curia say he has repeatedly botched diocesan cases and embarrassed his bishop before the Roman congregations of the Curia.

De Laire's incompetence has reached such a point that Church Militant has learned he is currently outsourcing work product that he as a canon lawyer is being paid well by the diocese to complete himself to the canonical community at large, at increasingly great expense to the diocese.

On a professional level, he is said by priests and laity who currently work with him in the diocese to be a vindictive and manipulative clericalist who pines to be named a bishop or an official of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. Hence his attack on the Saint Benedict Center, a "useful situation" designed to redirect attention away from complaints regarding his performance and instead to his "skill" as an expert in doctrinal matters, notwithstanding his incompetence in things canonical.

Additional questions are raised, however, not just by the recent decisions of the vicar affecting Catholic faithful under his power, but also by his acquisitions. While Pope Francis has checked into a hotel instead of the Apostolic Palace for lodging, Church Militant has learned that de Laire now frequently resides at an estate located near Manchester that he recently purchased, currently valued at $1.5 million: an exclusive 4,000-square-foot, four-bedroom residence with 600 feet of waterfront, waterfalls and a koi pond.

Tracey • 3 years ago

I would like to say all these comments about Fr. de Laire are hateful and unchristian! You should all be ashamed of yourselves for being so judgemental and making so many assumptions about this priest. Salvation is for those who follow the teachings of Christ. Focus on your faith and if you do not agree with Fr. de Laire's comments and actions, then pray for him and be compassionate. Being a priest is a very hard job in this day and age, and they are just as human as anyone else. A lot of these accusations are false and these speculations are a waste of time and gossip is a sin. I know Fr. de Laire to be a loving and compassionate man, and he does a lot of good in his ministry. Maybe you should all look at yourselves and ask what kind of Christian are you if you are being so judgemental. Why not take your time and energy to pray for the church, and for priests who are trying their best to serve you. You know nothing of what it's like to be in such a position. Priests do not take vows of poverty...and many priests own property from their own families or their own savings. It's not your place to judge this man...it's up to God, who calls us to love the sinner, hate the sin. I suggest those of you full of hate ask your God for forgiveness and pray that you can be a better member of your church.

These comments have really gone off topic and one's sexual preference is totally irrelevant to one's ability to serve, and it's none of anyone's business how priests choose to deal with the challenge of celibacy. Jesus never made a single comment about homosexuals and using the word "sodomite" to describe a church leader is despicable. I suspect those of you who have time to spend gossiping and having these thoughts are filled with guilt about your own short-comings and poor decisions. Pray, forgive, thank God for those who are brave enough to continue serving as priests. Stop wasting your time and allow God to handle the matters which are beyond your control and foster more love in your hearts.

"Stop wasting your time and allow God to handle the matters which are beyond your control and foster more love in your hearts."

Considering what is publicly surfacing in the Catholic Church as regards to sexual abuse, Catholic Doctrine abuse, economic abuse(stealing) of church funds, etc. etc. do you blame the faithful who scrutinize every possible misdeed by Catholic Clergy?
We the Faithful are now trying to hold Catholic Church Hierarchy accountable for their actions at every level.

The only way to know what's going on in the Catholic Church(all Rites) is through CM and RADIX.

I know several Catholic Priest's who belong to Church Militant to find out what's really happening in the Catholic Church that they have given their life for!

The real truth is even held from them!

Yes it's very hard not to scrutinize every priest, and very sad it has come to this. I agree they should be held accountable for their wrong-doing..but this conversation about Fr. de Laire has gotten way out of control. Let's pray for good priests to stay strong in the face of unfortunate accusations and speculations that may not be true.

Well someone needs to read up on what the church has always taught, if we do not then we will become heretics and believe false doctrines. Jesus said to make a righteous judgment. He called out the heretics of his day and called them a brood of vipers. He also whipped people out of the temple and overturned the tables of the money changers turning his Father's house into a den of thieves. I see a problem of people having the wrong view of Christ and it seems more that the protestant christ is one like they believe in these days. One that never is judging, always smiling, always happy, never angry, never sad. What a bunch of lies. Of course Christ is meek and humble of heart but if you are snake or a wolf He certainly came down on them harshly. (/donate) fluffy Christ that doesn't care if pastors are homosexuals and unholy and go worship Him, but I warn you if you do you will definitely lose your soul, this is what the Church always taught. Either believe it all or none of it, dont be a modernist heretic and pick and choose. And Roman's chapter 1 will tell you all you need to know about the sodomites and what they are full of. We pray for them and hope they convert, we love the person and we detest those sins of depravity. It's a fine line really, but yes we are to love our enemies and pray for them, but when it comes to judgment in the house of God it is different as scripture says. We dont so much judge outsiders but those within with a righteous judgment, with sternness yet with gentleness. Depending on the gravity of the situation. St Pope Pius the V would hand over any priests that were caught sexually abusing boys to the local authorities of the time and said if those men were found guilty to put them to death. Now there's a holy Pope we need these days. Justice, where is justice?

You are right about secular priests not taking a vow of poverty. But as priests they should try to follow Christ more closely and not revel in worldly goods. True, Jesus never spoke about homosexuality, but He also never spoke about abortion; a lot of things are not recorded in the NT, but sodomy is a biblical word and is vehemently condemned. Now whether Fr. Georges de Laire is a homosexual and also practices sodomy, is another thing; we have no proof of the latter.

I believe the concept of abortion per se is never mentioned in the NT altogether, I wished it would have been for clarity's sake. You are allowed to kill your enemies because they threaten your life. This is what pro-abortion people claim: you can kill your baby if it threatens your life.

I agree that ther are a lotr of disturbing "facts" in this article, but actually, I know Fr. De Laire, his family is extremely wealthy, originally from Paris, and he owns the house because of his family. The house is not paid for by the diocese.

One does "scandalize" by one's actions, even if those actions are innocent. Something more modest may be appropriate in this case of $1.5M house and reduce the "scandalization" of both Catholics and non-Catholics. One can only imagine the type of "ride" he has.

Agreed. However, I am a conservative Catholic who values an objective look at the inner workings of our church. The innuendos, inferences, and supplications in several of these articles border on gossip and hearsay rather than facts. I would much prefer just the facts rather than presumptions. For example, he cited three complaints against father in this article, how do we know these complaints are well-founded? There are a lot of crazy people within our own church. Instead, he makes it seem as the complaints are already validated and we can start to crucify this priest. I agree with most of the article but we must be more careful with our assumptions.

JohnnyCurendents → Jules • 3 years ago • edited

You're right about separating gossip from evidence. Unfortunately, when there is a great deal of smoke inside the Church these days, we have to pay attention because we've learned it often means there is in fact a fire; almost obsessive ecclesiastical secrecy leaves us no other recourse to discover what is afoot. If, for example, everyone had taken seriously the many private stories that circulated concerning Ted McCarrick, this gangster might have been put out of business long ago. Were these reports gossip before we had physical evidence of payouts and court cases? Sure, but they pointed in the right direction.

I suspect there was a cabal of Roman-collared sodomafiosos working in the diocese during the decade-long heyday of Ed Arsenault, the disgraced and defrocked former Chancellor and chief caper in McCormack. Perhaps it or elements of it are still in business in Manchester.

Of course not everybody is guilty, but one of the problems in the Catholic hierarchy was, and still is, the hunger for promotion and power. That is a largely masculine trait which apparently is not extinguished by ordination. A secondary trait is a love of money which is also not extinguished by ordination.

Feminism, like pro-choice, is a misnomer; it should be "women's revolt" and the latter pro-abortion. But one must be fair; the women's "revolt" does have some valid points: e.g. equal pay for equal work, equal chance at promotion in the workplace, and protection against sexual predation.

@Josephine Harkay, "hunger for promotion and power" is not a "masculine" trait. The root of the word "greed" is "hunger". Compound that with desire for promotion (pride) and power (lust), you have made yourself a diabolical cocktail that can be easily imbibed by anyone who is not interested in developing moral virtue. There is no such thing as something unchanged. However, it can be observed in the Sacrament of Reconciliation. Virtue on the other hand is a habitual behavior, meaning the virtues of the opposite of greed, pride, and lust, such as, generosity, humility, and chastity, are obtained by practice.

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

Josephine Harkay → Stephen Quayle • 3 years ago • edited

Practically all the "wisdom" I possess comes from the huge amount of material I have read in my lifetime. Sorry, I couldn't possibly find the articles I read about dominant male and female characteristics; e.g. the male hormone testosterone makes men aggressive. This innate aggressiveness manifests itself in the priesthood by trying to get ahead. (We are not talking now about saintly priests.) You could also read here on Church Militant what machinations were going on behind closed doors to advance a member of the clergy to a higher title or position. Ambition can be good or bad; what is a "virtue" in business and civil life, is a "vice" in the hierarchy. The love of money of course is a universally human trait; undue love of money is bad in every state of life.

The corrupt priests and bishops just don't stop. They seemingly want to destroy the foundation of the Church's beauty and Truth. I hope the naive and witless Catholics will soon wake up and stop living in denial. They don't see the truth and don't want to. The Corrupt bishops know the pews are filled with those who will follow them - right to the brink of hell, rather than take a stand against them. Maranatha!

"pews are filled"? Not hardly. It isn't about taking a stand "against them" as it is standing in the Traditional and Orthodox teachings of the One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church. People sleeping in the pew usually don't wake up unless there is reason to do so. Give them reason, Gloria. 😊 We've got to pray for our own continual conversion, for all sinners, heretics, schismatics, and pagans. The Lord is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. 1 Pet 3:9

These poor people have been through this before. They have a letter somewhere that was written by I think it might have been the vicar general of the Boston Archdiocese (that's where their group is originally from) saying that they are entitled to a staunch interpretation if others are entitled to a quite broad interpretation of the dogma.

I'm glad Michael and his crew are on their side. Brother Andre Marie worked and lived with Brother Francis for a very long time. Brother Francis was Father Feeney's "right hand man".

As an aside, what they are saying is what I was taught in grammar school. Someone that got lost in the years following Vatican II.

I heard from Brother Andre Marie that he had a "discussion" with a priest concerning the doctrine that Divine revelation ended with the death of the last Apostle. The priest swore that Divine revelation has not ended and that is what is being taught in the seminary. Brother Andre followed up the discussion with an email to the priest with citations from various Church Fathers, Papal Encyclicals/Bulls, and the Catechism trying to change the priest's mind. This happened last fall. I wonder if this is where the problem began?

GodnCountry → SgtJUSMC • 3 years ago • edited

Wait what? Is it dogma that divine revelation ended? Call me ill informed, but when the Pope spoke the Immaculate Conception and Mary confirmed it to Bernadette, wasn't that divine? Or is what your speaking of something else? Sincere question here.

1 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

JohnnyCurendents → GodnCountry • 3 years ago

The Immaculate Conception was always believed by a significant number of the faithful and was implicit in all that was taught up to the end of the Apostolic Age. The notion that revelation somehow continues is a ~~heresy~~ ^{deception} like that of Tom Rosica and those of his ilk.

I must not understand the term revelation then. So what the Blessed Virgin has said, in repeated attempts to save us, to seers years in advance of the events, is not revelation? She's revealing the future. That's not it?

No, it is not. Remember that the Church cautions --always has-- that these private revelations (Fatima, Akita, etc.) are not obligatory beliefs for the faithful. Do you think the Church would ever say that about revelation?

It doesn't surprise me that the error "Divine revelation has not ended and that is what is being taught in the seminary." exists today. Modernists would love to jump all over that and use it to justify their error plagued, changeable doctrines. Whatever solace one can draw from this problem is the knowledge that modernist idiots like this have come and gone in the Church for two thousand years and have always been refuted.

Vatican II in a footnote to the document on the Church states that "saving bonds" with the Catholic Church are sufficient for salvation. The exact definition of those "saving bonds" is not enunciated. These same Slaves of The Immaculate Heart had been excommunicated by Cardinal Cushing of Boston in the 1950's for the same doctrine...and re-instated by this footnote without ever recanting or changing their mantra that there is no salvation outside the Catholic Church. Vatican II redefined the "Church" as the People of God, thus blurring the edges without altering Pope Boniface's dogma.

For the record, the Slaves of the IHM were NOT excommunicated, not in the Fifties, not ever. A demonstrably defective "excommunication" was pronounced against Fr. Leonard Feeney from Rome (not by then-Archbishop Cushing). But Father's faithful Catholic status was "restored" not, as noted, by his recanting any error, but merely by his reciting in the presence of a visiting bishop the Athanasian Creed (which twice professes the dogma of No salvation outside the Church). Mind you, Father was given no indication that his surreptitious restoration to good standing in the Church was even the purpose of the bishop's visit.

"People of God" so vaguely stated amounts to "sola fide". Basically, it implies all people who profess Jesus as the God Man are members of The Body. But Christ Himself contradicts this notion (Matt. 7:21+), as well as St. Paul in many places because The Body is clearly "My Church" of Matt. 16:18+. True belief is manifested in each human Will. The Will is primary see Scotus.

The following is infallible

"The most Holy Roman Church firmly believes, professes and preaches that none of those existing outside the Catholic Church, not only pagans, but also Jews and heretics and schismatics, can have a share in life eternal; but that they will go into the eternal fire which was prepared for the devil and his angels, unless before death they are joined with Her; and that so important is the unity of this ecclesiastical body that only those remaining within this unity can profit by the sacraments of the Church unto salvation, and they alone can receive an eternal recompense for their fasts, their alms givings, their other works of Christian piety and the duties of a Christian soldier. No one, let his almsgiving be as great as it may, no one, even if he pour out his blood for the Name of Christ, can be saved, unless he remain within the bosom and the unity of the Catholic Church." Correct Council of Florence, 1441. In addition to Eugene IV and Boniface VIII, there were others who have proclaimed this Dogma over and over. Innocent I (1215, 4th Latern) and St. Augustine (not a Pope but a Doctor of The Church, used as a theological stepping stone for many) were also explicit on this matter. And besides all that, it makes no sense that God would be vague in founding His Church and leave behind any "multiple choice" and remain a Divine Being. "I am The Way, The Truth and The Life" not merely 'one of them'. I study Scotus who said "the Will is primary". Thank you.

I think it is important to point out that the St. Benedict Center in Richmond, New Hampshire has never been given canonical recognition by the Diocese of Manchester, NH. It was refounded in 1976 by Br. Hugh MacIsaac (Slaves of the IHM?). This St. Benedict Center (different web site (saintbenedict.com) is in Still River, MA, and is recognized by the Bishop of Worcester. Both groups run a school named for the Immaculate Heart of Mary. It can get very confusing for Catholics to distinguish the Feeneyites (of New Hampshire) from the Slaves of the IHM in Still River, MA, both running a Saint Benedict Center. Your research might also discover that on Aug 16/18 one of the signees of the letter to the Cardinals asking Pope Francis to correct his 'new' teaching on capital punishment, was Brother Andre Marie, M.I.C.M. who is the Prior of the New Hampshire St. Benedict Center, and holds a MA in dogmatic theology. This would cause annoyance to the diocese of Manchester, NH.

Please forgive how long my explanation is. I do understand that Jesus will not accept any pope into heaven if that pope compromises the way, truth and life of Jesus as pope, and if that pope leads even one sheep of HIS flock into hell, Jesus said, to Peter, "Feed My Flock", so the pope must feed the flock without changing the way, truth and life of Jesus. As pope, he is accountable for "ALL" of the flock. The flock IS the Mystical Body of Jesus Himself that cannot be deformed by a pope.

When you say, "his being a sodomite" that makes me curious of your intention. Let me say, if Paul VI continued as, "his being a sodomite" to the end, even if he repented at the end, it means that Paul VI had not the courage to die for the truth of Jesus Christ, in protecting the truth in "his being a sodomite". Paul VI never in this state of "his being a sodomite" never openly professed it to the world. Saint Paul always openly professed who he was as Saul, as it could not be hidden by the Christians of those days and it still cannot be hidden from Christians of today, and that is why I ask as a Christian, "Why is there news of Pope Paul VI as a homosexual, since he did not profess it to be the truth of him?" "WHY was it hidden?" If clearly, homosexuality, the inclination peculiar to sodomites, is not grounds for declaring anyone a heretic. Here is a short definition of a heretic: "Objectively, therefore, to become a heretic in the strict canonical sense and be excommunicated from the faithful, one must deny or question a truth that is taught not merely on the authority of the Church but on the word of God revealed in the Scriptures or sacred tradition." Homosexuality is a very serious personality disorder, but it does not necessarily entail also being a heretic.

I know the meaning of "salvation" and how one achieves or loses it, and I am not a politician, I follow the law, but I follow Christ above all. Christ is not confusing in the terms of ipso facto and heresy. Jesus declares homosexuality as death, and in this conversation, homosexuality is the subject matter, ipso facto, if a sodomite or sodomite pope promotes Sodomy on earth, ipso fact, he is not in heaven. Any sodomite sheep who follow a sodomite pope, if they do not repent and confess their mortal sins with "humility in honesty", before they die, what they did in active or consenting to homosexuality in that mortal sin, will be the deciding factor of where those souls end up in their eternal salvation, but a pope has the highest accountability, not only for his soul, but for ALL the souls of Jesus' flock. Heretic or not, you can try to figure that one out in popes who reigned or while popes reign, but to follow a sodomite pope is dangerous. Don't be afraid of a person who can kill the body, be afraid of a person who can kill both body and soul. To follow a sodomite pope who denies "his being a sodomite", is not a pope I will follow. To die consenting to a sodomite popes ways, without repenting or confessing, because there was ignorance on the part of the soul who didn't know about that pope, might get you into

I do not need to understand the language of Spanish to realize that you are 'rude', and unbecoming in the ignorance of your comment. The heart of your soul must change so that your world will change.

I am going to answer your question in the context of the question that I asked first in relation to your question. My question was: "Why is there news that Pope Paul VI was in fact a homosexual, and because of this sad fact, it is said that he compromised the pontificate of his papacy?", and you replied with a question, "But, even if true, his being a sodomite would not make him ipso facto a heretic, right?"

Here is the answer in relation to the subject: If a soul dies in active or consenting to homosexuality, the second death IS death/hell. The answer to your question in relation to my question: If a soul dies in active or consenting to heresy ipso facto, the second death IS death/hell, so homosexuality in relation to a heretic ipso facto, there is no difference in the second death, in that Both Are DEATH/HELL! When heresy is used today with reference to Christianity, it denotes the formal denial or doubt of a core doctrine of the Christian faith.

How is "homosexuality" a core doctrine of the Christian faith?

You know that if you try to explain homosexuality as a core doctrine of the teaching of Christ as Christian faith, you are a heretic!

be good. The latter are like incarnate devils who attract men under the outward show of good, drawing them in, only to entice them to fall into grave sin. The Church is indeed His Mystical Body, and He glories in being Her Head. BUT, the members of His body must grow to the proper stature; otherwise His body would be deformed. So many of the members have not matured in due proportion, and are wounded and even festered.

Now, the flock will be fed heresy, and how many of them will recognize it as such? Viva Cristo Rey

Say your prayer for him, to get it over with, and then scratch him off, and make sure that you earnestly pray, giving him to Jesus to mold him from birth, because scripture says, Matthew 26:24 "The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man shall be betrayed: it were better for him, if that man had not been born. And Judas that betrayed him, answering, said: Is it I, Rabbi? He saith to him: Thou hast said it."

You see, this anointed one to satan has to have a full rebirth, and only Jesus can give that to him. Viva Cristo Rey

Maybe this priest doesn't know what no salvation outside the Catholic Church really means....namely that Jesus Christ founded the one, holy Catholic Church as the means of salvation for all. The Catholic Church is the way established by Christ....no other. God is still free to give graces to others but it is not known to whom or how often He gives these graces.

"God is still free to give graces to others"

Yes, but those are graces to convert and join the Church, not to be saved outside of the Church.

5 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

TobiasRaphael1 ➔ schlaflosig • 3 years ago • edited

He most certainly does, that is how people are brought into the Catholic Church. It is called God's particular providence.

Gospel of Saint John ch 10 v.16 ; "And other sheep I have, that are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." - Our Lord, Jesus Christ

This is why God established the Catholic Church and sent the Apostles and disciples out to convert the world and to bring them into His Church... with His graces aiding them and those to whom they are preaching to. One only has to read the Acts of the Apostles to see this in action.

And there is the fascinating true story of the conversion of Roy Schoeman, the author of Salvation is from the Jews. No one was further from the Church than Roy when Jesus and Mary intervened for reasons we are not privileged to know yet. Now all of us could hope to be a Catholic as knowledgeable and devout as Mr. Schoeman.

I think she is correct to say that graces given to those outside the Church are for the purpose of bringing the soul into the one true Church. And that can't possibly be wrong if we are to believe Christ's prayer to the Father that the "Church be One". The only place Christ would bring someone is into the One True Church.

I think it has nothing to do with that or with theological issues at all. What I make of it is that this man simply wants to put himself in the spotlight where he will be seen by the ultra-liberalists in the Vatican, especially the Pope. And in this he may be right. Francis might consider this man as an excellent candidate for a high office in Rome, or as a candidate bishop.

"Extra Ecclesiam Nulla Salus" Boniface VIII was an important Pope, but far from the only one to proclaim this Dogma "from the Chair". A list of Popes and Catholic writers a mile long have been consistent on this matter, going back to Scripture itself. The matter is a binary, objective reality ... it's either true or false. I like to open discussions now with this Dogma to see exactly where folks stand, and to be certain that if they walk away, they will have encountered the kind of lingering Truth that disturbs them. If you pray The Creed sincerely at Mass and before every Rosary, then why would you not tell others every chance you get about your righteous Pride? This Priest is not "cracking down", he is cracking up!

I knew His Eminence Peter Libasci in person from his time on Long Island. He was a very good man loving the Church. I hope he still is. He is, however, a man of "not too strong arm". I hope it will change because these days a man needs to be tough, especially with the evil withing the Church.

I agree with your assessment of Bishop Libasci. I am a veteran of the "Boston scandals war" that spread here to NH thanks to the appointment of now retired Bishop John McCormack and thus very alert to any signs of irregularity at the chancery. To date, apart from what we rea here about De Laire, I've seen nothing at all alarming in Manchester; tout au contraire. However, Libasci does not strike me as a man comfortable with confrontation and controversy, and I admit that may be a lamentable weakness inside the Church these days.

I am happy to see this article.. I wondered what was going on when i read the order for faithful Catholics . Fr De Laire has never sat well with me . When my son was making his confirmation, he needed to meet with the pastor, Fr DeLaire, De Laire asked him how many kids at the high school were sexually active and drinking and doing drugs! I was shocked my son assured me he spoke with other boys who were asked the same question

What you write is a definite red flag. Since the Boston scandals we've learned to read correctly the subliminal message sent by questions like this from a priest to an adolescent boy. That along with the astounding real estate purchase detailed in this article suggest to me a great deal about this particular priest. At the very least, we have to say that suspicions concerning him are hardly misplaced.

hockeyCEO → Lans • 3 years ago

It could also be that Fr De Laire asked these questions to determine how many confirmation candidates were leading an immoral life. As a pastor, it would be good information to know just how poorly these students were taught the faith.

It is distorted and has an agenda behind it ... I doubt that agenda is to save souls. Big red flag !!

Does this priest preach chastity and purity from the pulpit ?

Does he hear confessions regularly and constantly advocate for the faithful to use the confessional ?

If he does, then he has all the information he needs to understand the moral state of his flock.

Sounds like he was on a trolling mission to me ...

Funny thing growing up in the Catholic Church even during the "Dysfunctional Years". I have heard it said no one aspires to be a Bishop or a Pope. Regardless of their ambitions. At least that's how I heard it. Strike me if I'm wrong. I always heard it many who truly have the faith, vocation and the call would rather aspire to the mere Priesthood as like the Cure of Ars and Padre Pio just to name a tiny few.

St John Neumann I think it was begged NOT to be bishop. But once it was inevitable he worked even harder at being a good one. He died of a heart attack after mailing a chalice to a poor rural priest, and was found to be wearing a chain that cut his flesh as a penance. Today such a goodand godly priest wouldnt be promoted but drummed out of Seminary for being "rigid". - Nora Socrates argued that he who desires power if usually unfitted for it and he who is fitted for it normally does not desire it. You have been told this by very devout pple perhaps for this reason. If you had surrounded yourself with the faithless powerhungry you would have seen something else.

Socrates argued that to make things work one needed to convince those who did not want power to accept it and keep those who desired it fervently well away from it.

MizHarris → Maria Gabriela Salvarrey Rodri • 3 years ago

Thank you Maria for your wisdom. I heard this about Bishops I think before I left and became a lapsed Catholic. I'm not blaming the Church. I blame myself for not getting more educated in the faith. Subliminally before my Father died he was still keeping the faith up until he couldn't go any longer. His witness stuck with me so that helped as well. Its now that I think on it. I'm not up on Socrates but familiar. I take it that's where the Church gets it from to start with. Mother Angelica watching her brought me back and sealed the deal to the faith in or around the late 1990's. I think our Lord was calling the "troops" back into the faith more so during her, Mother Angelica's time on the tube. He most assuredly was working through her. As He was more than likely working through many in these times. I think many got the call. How many are serving do not know. God

It all should be very simple. The issue of Fr. de Laire is a personal and personnel problem. The real problem is with Bishop Libasci which makes it a systematic, disciplinary, and a pastoral problem. Something certainly does not smell right here...as in many a diocese where the bishop seems incapable.

5 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

Fred • 3 years ago

If Bishop Libasci was really opposed to this move then all it would take would be one phone call from him. It looks like another dodge from a cleric to have someone else do the dirty work. If the group was becoming some kind of unruly sect or cult then okay, but we would need more information in that regard to register our opinions into the mind of the internet. Perhaps there should also be an investigation into the life of Fr. de Laire.

It is not very difficult to see why more and more Catholics are starting orthodox organizations for faith, works and prayer, and are avoiding the use of the name 'Catholic' which the liberal clergy with all their abuses have so badly tarnished anyway.
